The patch testing team from the Skin & Cancer Foundation in Melbourne has put together the brand new program for the 5th Annual Patch Test Training Day, titled, A Diagnostic Journey.

The program will again be practical and hands on. Attendees will be educated on all aspects of assessing a patient with suspected contact dermatitis: from taking a patient history, selecting which allergens to test in different clinical scenarios, performing readings, and finally making a diagnosis. Videos of the SCF patch test clinics will be used to highlight these practical aspects of patch testing.

The day is suitable for dermatology nurses, registrars and dermatologists, including those who have attended our previous training days and also those new to patch testing.

For the first time, we are offering small group (maximum 10 people per group) tutorials for hands on patch testing experience, which will give people a chance to make and apply patches and familiarize themselves with the dilution of products brought in by patients.
